HEMPHIS APPEAL

From the Galveston Daily News. THE NEW-TIME. BY MISS MOLLIE E. MOORE. The heart of the Old-Time falleth, (Ah, the old, imperial Time!) Fails like a strong wind spent, yea falls alke the heart of a dying chime!

Ah, but her reign was splendor! With its grandly royal sights! Its waving flags and its keen, straig And its press of plumed knights. Her palace walls are written With the names of vanquish'd gods, And the blood of defeated tyrannies Is red on her scourging-rods! the dies with her sword unshesth'd, Let her die in the tomb of kings, With the conquer'd knights and the fold

And the old, memorial things! The hearf of the Old-Time falleth, But the New-Time entereth, Sorene and lair, and the words go down And the striving hosts take breath? The Old-Time goes like a subset,
With imperial splendor on;
But the New-Time comes like the Holy Child, Bearing nor sword nor crown!

h voice of the Old-Time sounded Like a trumpet-call to arms! But the voice of the New-lime trilleth out Over the world's alarms. Like the "Morp" of the Angel Unto the Mother of God! She hath love in her hand like a sun, her feet With hope and with gladness shou!

Oh, Poets, who sung in the Old-Time, With prophecies of this, Sweep over your harps with a golden rhyme And a song of miliennial bliss? For the heart of the Old-Time faileth, But the New-Time waxeth strong! The strong wind pents into nothingne But the right breeze bloweth long!
